I wouldn't take the kids. If this is going to work it will not be a safe place for them.

I was at both stop the steal marches and things were fine during the day in crowds. Things only got dicey around 3:30 or so.

I was there to! It's fine to take your kids if they're teens. The only time antifa attacks is when your alone or your helpless. Stay in groups and theres no issues. Most fights are between antifa and proud boys who are defending us. I took my 16 year old to the last one and I'm taking him to this one. We carry pepper spray, tasers, and we leave when it starts getting crazy. This is about Trump however Antifa seems to think we are all going there for them and they just need to get the fuck over themselves and fuck off

The Congress will have to know that some BLAMTIFA types will try to take them on in the evening. And that MAGA crowd may in fact outnumber them and DC 'police' and security. And they don't want to get caught up in it. If they don't reject Biden's attainment of 270 on Wednesday they KNOW they will be in for a world of hurt.

Unless they're not in D.C.? I have heard if the slate confirmations are being done in person or remote meeting.

▼ Uh that's an even more dumb idea. Do you want to get attacked by antifa?

▼ 5.56 is still deadly well past half a mile, which is further than most blocks in DC

▼ Take the kids but plan to be in the right places. Don't go anywhere stupid and you'll be just fine

▼ If you have taught your teens how to defend themselves from attack, then go with cautions.

Young teens are still no match for grown adults without a form of equalization....

▼ Allow me to introduce myself, I'm the emergency plan. I've got a few people lined up to do extraction if things turn ugly. I'd gladly accept a few more volunteers. Spread the word.

▼ It's not just safety. Kids shouldn't see people being hung and shit, and there's a reasonable chance that's how things go.

▼ Definitely made the right choice homeschooling. Too many kids are becoming leftists by default just because they go to public schools.

▼ My homeschooling family drove in from Texas for the Million MAGA March and we're coming again for 1/6.
See ya there!

▼ Before the civics lesson on Wed. you might want to have a history lesson on Mon. or Tues. about the Bonus Army protest of 1932 and the U.S. Army machine gunning a protest of WW1 veterans who came to the National Mall to protest for the bonus money they were promised for service in the war.

▼ I personally think that 1.6.21 is going to be safe. At least during the day. Come nighttime though, things might change. From 10 am to 6pm, probably should be good.

▼ I'm assuming the same. I'm trying to organize people to be standing by to help people get out if the worst happens, but if we don't get any emergency calls, we'll start rolling to the extraction points around 5:30 to help people get back their cars, hotels, etc. Spread the word, and message for details. I'd also gladly take a few more volunteers.

You may be aware of Patriot Academy, Constitution Alive (Rick Green), and Wallbuilders (David Barton). Good resources for homeschooling.

▼ This is exactly why I'm doing what I am. I'm trying to organize a rapid response team to help people get out of the area if things get bad. I don't want to see kids caught in the crossfire. I've set 5 extraction points. I'm not publicly posting them so Antifa can't camp out there, but you can message me. If things get ugly, get your kids to one of these points. We'll get you out.

0 Ummm. Do not go with such, unless your kids are all young men itching to man helicopters... It will be instructive, though: more of a POSTcivics class.
